

Week 3 - Summary

Core Idea

- Clickbait (done right) = the art of getting a large number of the right people to click, without misleading them.
- Sits between boring and misleading mild exaggeration is fine if the video delivers.
- Viewers care less about perfect thumbnail accuracy than most creators think.

3 Stages of Effective Packaging

1. Stop Scroll: Grab attention visually and emotionally.
2. Create Interest: Make the viewer think “There’s something I need to understand”.
3. Get Click: The title + thumbnail compels them to click to get the answer/story.

Packaging Workflow

1. Thumbnail Sketches
 - Quick sketches, Photoshop mockups, or reference images to create a thumbnail plan.
2. A/B Testing
 - Use YouTube’s built-in test feature to validate thumbnail & title performance.

Title Strategy

- Keep it short: <70 characters (ideally <50).
- Use universal language (avoid region-specific terms if not global).
- Run through a readability scorer.
- Complement the thumbnail, avoid repeating it.
- Focus on human interest, not SEO keyword stuffing.
- Easy to read at a glance, avoid heavy segmentation & all caps (unless niche-specific).
- Use Title Case formatting and parentheses for emphasis (if applicable).

📌 Concepting Strategy

- Start with psychology: curiosity, stakes, relatability.
- Build from a reference: internal (past videos), external (other channels), or innovation.
- Audience fit is critical tailor to what your viewers want.
- Pose a compelling question the audience must click to answer.
- Glance Test: instantly readable and understandable.
- Leverage contrast, scale, and comparison to spark curiosity.

📌 Designing Strategy

- Simplicity: Remove unnecessary clutter.
- Bright & clear imagery (but avoid overexposure).
- Minimal text: under 5 words ask if text is needed at all.
- Follow the 3-element rule prioritize visual hierarchy.

- Apply color theory: know what colors blend vs. contrast for maximum pop.

✅ Key Takeaways

- Effective clickbait is curiosity-driven, not deceptive.
- Short, universal, emotionally intriguing titles + clean, high-contrast thumbnails drive clicks.
- Keep packaging workflows systematic — concept > sketch > test > refine.
